

Boston, September 15, 2022.

To whom it may concern,

I am Mauricio Galli Geleilate, a PHD and Business Strategy tenure professor of the University of Massachusetts.

This is an endorsement letter for Global Innovation Management Institute (GIMI), the largest innovation professional organization acknowledging its effective unique methodology.

After analyzing and using GIMI's methodology to teach students, audit, and consulting companies, I fully endorse GIMI as a world-class standard certification organization on innovation and innovation management. GIMI's framework and standards on innovation management have a wide application in a broad range of entities across SMEs, corporates, and governmental institutions.

I have researched other sources of content and methodologies globally to the point I firmly believe GIMI is the only one that encompasses a broad range of content, methods, tools, programs, practical know-how-to-do, certifications, and global networks combined to the ISO 56002, reason why I support the conclusions made by the former Committee Members of US International Organization for Standardization Working group 270 and 279, concluding that the GIMI methodology is unique and fully aligned with the innovation intent of 56002 and that the GIMI go even beyond ISO 56002 itself.

I fully recommend GIMI as the right organization to partner with, if you are looking to jumpstart innovation, build innovation capabilities & systems, or/and generate innovation results.

Yours Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in dark ink, appearing to read "J. Mauricio Galli Geleilate". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first letters of the first and last names being capitalized and prominent.

J. Mauricio Galli Geleilate, PhD.
Associate Professor of Management
Manning School of Business
University of Massachusetts Lowell
Pulichino Tong Business Center 331
72 University Avenue
Lowell, MA 01854
josemauricio_geleilate@uml.edu
O: 978-934-5526